1. The title of the invention is not descriptive. A new title is required that is clearly indicative of the invention to which the claims are directed.

The Title should provide a more detailed structural identification of the feature or features of the presently claimed invention which distinguish it from the prior art. The intended results produced by the structural differences can also be part of the content of the Title.

2. Pursuant to 37 CFR 1.75(g), applicant should attempt to organize the presentation of claims in an application with the least restrictive [broadest] claim(s) being presented earliest in the presentation of claims, and all dependent claims grouped together with the claim or claims from which they depend from, to the extent possible. Note, claims 8-20 are separated from the claims from which they depend.

3. Claims 5-7,17&18 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. §112, second paragraph, as being indefinite for failing to particularly point out and distinctly claim the subject matter which applicant regards as the invention.

The following phrases lack clear antecedent basis within the claims: "said predetermined material"(Cls.6&7)... the identification of the material used in the two different layers of the composite layer by the same phrase is confusing since they are distinctly different layers of different materials.

An exhaustive search of indefinite and/or ambiguous language has not been attempted, but only exemplified in the preceding paragraphs. Therefore the applicant is responsible for a thorough review of all the claims to make corrections as appropriate.

4. The following is a quotation of the appropriate paragraphs of 35 U.S.C. §102 that form the basis for the rejections under this section made in this Office action:

A person shall be entitled to a patent unless --

(a) the invention was known or used by others in this country, or patented or described in a printed publication in this or a foreign country, before the invention thereof by the applicant for a patent.

(b) the invention was patented or described in a printed publication in this or a foreign country or in public use or on sale in this country, more than one year prior to the date of application for patent in the United States.

(e) the invention was described in (1) an application for patent, published under section 122(b), by another filed in the United States before the invention by the applicant for patent or (2) a patent granted on an application for patent by another filed in the United States before the invention by the applicant for patent, except that an international application filed under the treaty defined in section 351(a) shall have the effects for purposes of this subsection of an application filed in the United States only if the international application designated the United States and was published under Article 21(2) of such treaty in the English language.

5. Claims 1-20 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. §102(e) as being anticipated by Sin.

See Fig. 2. See col.5, line 61 thru col.6, line 10. Note, to the extent claimed, insulating layer 130 fabricated from at least two of the disclosed materials identified in claim 2 and is both in contact with the magneto-resistive layers of sense region 110 and is also exclusive of a biasing magnetic layer.

Re claim 5; composite layer of Sin is construed to be composed of seed layer 142 made from Cr with lower layer toward base being insulator 130 (supra).

Re claim 9; non-magnetic layer 160 substantially over-lies the magneto-resistive layers region 110.

6. The prior art made of record and not relied upon is considered pertinent to applicant's disclosure.

Hayakawa shows an insulating layer(31) in contact with a magneto-resistive layer and Shimazawa discloses multiple material configurations for layer 76.

7. For a complete response applicant should identify how the claimed structure of his invention defines over all the art of record.

Art Unit: 2653

Moreover, where the applicant disagrees with the reasoning and/or application of the prior art on critical points of the claims, they should identify how the claimed structure of their invention defines over all the art of record not just the applied art.

Where applicant believes that the art is redundant and/or superfluous relative to the critical aspects of the claimed invention the applicant may simply state so in rebuttal summary.

8. If applicant has filed an information disclosure statement prior to one month before the mailing date of this office action and this instant office action does not contain an initialed-off copy (or copies) of all such filed IDS's (or at least a comment to the disposition of such IDS'S in the body of the office action itself) applicant should apprise the examiner of such missing documentation [to the IDS's] in response to this office action so that the examiner can take appropriate action to supply same to the applicant.
